"MELT DOWN"

Dalí's The Persistence of Memory

"Teach us to number our days aright . . ." Psalm 90 pleads. The Book of Ecclesiastes issues a "reality alert" about the final emptiness of the way we spend time . . . how we waste life!

"Vanity of vanities! All things are vanity!"

The parable of the "rich fool" (Luke 12 16-21) warns us we have no mastery over time, possessions or life. In search of a visual work of art that builds on such melancholy revelations, I found Salvador Dalí's The Persistence of Memory irresistible.

Salvador Dalí (1904-1989) is impossible to describe in a few adjectives or a simple sentence. One of the greatest artists of the 20th century, an eccentric in the extreme sense, a revolutionary and reactionary in the art world, Salvador Dalí was also an enigmatic, but magnificent, revert to Catholicism. Dalí is one of the most important figures in an avant garde artistic movement called surrealism. When he was expelled from the inner circle of surrealists for being apolitical during the rise of fascism, he protested: "I myself am surrealism!" And he believed it! Surrealism aimed to transcend reality as viewed by the naked eye, and show instead images of the subconscious. Highly influenced by Sigmund Freud and Carl Jung, surrealism was a "dreamscape" that substituted traditional form and perspective for a new world.

The "world" of surrealism was a kind of "twilight zone" of unexpected and unrelated objects and themes. Surrealists like Dalí could use realistic objects in the most detailed way. Others opted for abstraction without logic or normal standards. In surrealism, the prime directive was "let imagination rule."

Dalí's The Persistence of Memory (1931) and what might be considered its sequel, The Disintegration of the Persistence of Memory (1954) reflect the artist's fascination with science. The two works represent "stages" or an evolution of Dalí's world view. In the earlier work, a Freudian play of images and arguably Einstein's Theory of Relativity may be the keys to unlock its meaning. Are the "soft watches" symbols of the relativity of time and space? Is the ant infested watch inevitable decay and death? Is this, as some suggest, a "surrealist meditation on the collapse of our notions of a fixed cosmic order"? Dalí himself denied that the "melting watches" were inspired by the Theory of Relativity. He said what inspired the watches was "Camembert cheese melting in the sun"! The barren landscape, cliffs and sea and monstrous "creature" are the things that inhabit our dreams - - places that are everywhere and nowhere, forms fading in and out. The Persistence of Memory has often been seen as "a rejection that time is rigid and deterministic." Since Dalí was a long way from his return to Catholicism no one finds a religious symbolism in this 1931 work. However, time relates to Biblical themes and decay of the finite as well.

Dalí's life and career experiences from 1931 to 1954 included marriage, being a war refugee, witnessing the Atomic Age, and return to Catholicism. Professionally, in 1941, he shocked the artistic community with his "last scandal" - - a declaration that he would only engage in "classical painting." His spiritual journey led him to the poetry and drawings of St. John of the Cross. By 1949, he was a practicing Catholic and even had a private audience with Pope Pius XII! He painted impressive religious subjects including The Crucifixion of St. John of the Cross and The Sacrament of the Last Supper.

What is perhaps most amazing about a very surprising artist is the way Dalí combined science with religious belief. He firmly asserted that:

“not a single philosophic, moral, aesthetic or biological discovery allows the denial of God.”

Dalí was an odd sort of mystic and visionary. He advanced the atomic nature of the universe and a theory of “nuclear mysticism.” This came from a flamboyant and really weird celebrity who made silly commercials and gave gothic interviews! His whole perspective changed when he adopted Dr. Werner Heisenberg’s Uncertainty Principle and issued his own version of the “anti-matter manifesto.”

His “then” and “now” comparison is also a rationale for painting, The Disintegration of the Persistence of Memory:

Then:

“I wanted to create the iconography of the interior world and the world of the marvelous, of my father Freud.”

Now:

“Today the exterior world and that of Physics has transcended the one of Psychology. (This advance is from) my father, Dr. Heisenberg.”

If one studies the two paintings together, the second painting shows fragmentation and disintegration in small rectangular forms. It is Dalí’s recognition and homage to the superiority of the “new science.”

Like many a genius, Dalí was a paradox. He loved to shock with assertions that he was both Catholic and agnostic, an anarchist and monarchist. I do not question his sincerity as a Catholic or an artist the way some of his peers have. It is reported that, in 1947, he was exorcised by a pious Italian friar. It seems to have been successful. Even so, I have never heard even a rumor of his “cause” being introduced. Nor is this article a proposal to airbrush his life and “Halo Dalí.”

WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR? - “Allah/God”

“When Muslims say ‘Allah’ and Christians say ‘God’, are they referring to the same God? The answer is yes and no. But let us look more closely.

“Regarding the One whom Muslims and Christians worship, the answer is yes. Allah is just the Arabic word for ‘God’. It is also the word Arabic-speaking Christians use in their prayers and at Mass. For both Muslims and Christians Allah/God is the one and only God. Regarding their understanding of God both Christians and Muslims would answer no. Consequently, Christianity and Islam are two separate religions.

“Christians believe God is Father, Son and Holy Spirit. ‘Three persons equal in majesty, undivided in splendor, yet one Lord, one God’ (Preface of the Mass for the Trinity). When Muslims say ‘Allah’ in their prayers, they mean the One and Only God who is neither two nor three. For Muslims, Allah is indivisible and un-partnerable.

“So again, when Christians pray and say ‘God’, and their Muslim neighbors say ‘Allah’, are both referring to the same God? The answer is yes and no.

Listen

© Jupiterimages/Getty Images/Thinkstock

When a young boy and his father went to the park, the dad struck up a conversation with other parents nearby. His son stood by his side trying to get his attention: “Dad? Dad?” The father, so attentive to the other adults, seemed oblivious to his child. Similarly, as a mom was picking up her kids from school and loading them into the minivan, her daughter told a rambling story about what happened in class that day. The mom was preoccupied until her daughter suddenly stopped and asked, “Mom, are you listening?” Listening is not always easy. The Rule of Saint Benedict calls monks to “listen with the ear of the heart.” One of the most meaningful gifts we parents can give our children is to listen—without distraction and with a listening heart. —Tom McGrath

OUR LADY OF KNOCK MASS

The Feast of Our Lady of Knock will be celebrated during the Noon Mass on Sunday, August 18th. Everyone is invited to come, pray, and learn the story of the appearance of the Blessed Virgin Mary, St. Joseph, and St. John the Evangelist at the Church at Knock, County Mayo, Ireland in 1879. Refreshments will be served in the Holy Family Room following the Mass. Helping hands and smiling faces would be most appreciated for serving or clean-up. Breads (Irish soda, zucchini, etc.) and scones would also be gratefully accepted. If you would like to help in one of these ways, please sign up in the Holy Family Room today or next weekend or call the RE Office, 847/966-1180.

Our Lady of Knock, Queen of Ireland, you gave hope to your people in a time of distress, and comforted them in sorrow. You have inspired countless pilgrims to pray with confidence to your divine Son, remembering His promise, "Ask and you shall receive, seek and you shall find." Help me to remember that we are all pilgrims on the road to heaven. Fill me with love and concern for my brothers and sisters in Christ, especially those who live with me. Comfort me when I am sick, lonely or depressed. Teach me how to take part ever more reverently in the Holy Mass. Give me a greater love of Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament. Pray for me now, and at the hour of my death. Amen.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

When Pope Pius XII died in 1958, there was the usual buzz of speculation about likely successors. Cardinal Agagianian, Patriarch of the Armenians, was highly thought of as a likely choice. This took many Catholics by surprise, since he had never celebrated the same liturgy as Pope Pius, but followed ancient Armenian customs according to the Eastern Church, which veils the Eucharistic liturgy from sight by a series of curtains, and in which the priest kneels while the people stand for Communion.

In the years that followed, the Second Vatican Council would affirm the dignity and independence of the Eastern Churches, in complete union with Rome, yet different in patterns of life and worship. We have the same faith, the same sacraments, and the same pope. Yet everywhere in the world our separate Churches are combined into families held together by the ministry of bishops. All of this serves as warning: If you ever say, "But we've always done it this way," you are on very thin ice indeed!
